TROOP H, OF CORAOPOLIS

Citizens of Coraopolis, one of the most wideawake communities in this State, are working like beavers to secure a permanent structure for the Troop of Cavalry recently organized in the borough. Thanks to her progressive men of affairs, Coraopolis now possesses the largest armory site in Pennsylvania, and it is regarded as but a matter of comparatively short time before a handsome fine home ready taken its place among the very leaders in the National Guard and its future career is assured.

The Coraopolis Troop was in fact only organized on October 28, 1910. Its record has been phenomenal. Captain Charles C. McGovern and James J. Firestone, both prominent in military affairs for years, took the lead in recruiting the Troop and their services for Troop H, Second Squadron, will replace the present temporary quarters on these grounds.

CAPTAIN CHARLES C. McGOVERN
Commanding Troop H, 2nd Squadron

Coraopolis is well deserving of consideration from the Armory Board. Her citizens are among the most patriotic in the entire country, and the borough has a history to which she can well point with pride. Though but a healthy infant in age the new Troop has already taken its place among the very leaders in the National Guard and its future career is assured.

The Coraopolis Troop was in fact only organized on October 28, 1910. Its record has been phenomenal. Captain Charles C. McGovern and James J. Firestone, both prominent in military affairs for years, took the lead in recruiting the Troop and their services were well backed up by other prominent citizens of the borough. The two leaders were at once elected Captain and First Lieutenant respectively and W. Heber Dithrich was appointed Quartermaster with the rank of Second Lieutenant. Interest in the Troop was early asserted and the quota of fifty-five enlisted men and three officers was easily secured as a result both of the efforts of the organizers and also of the patriotic sentiment of the community.

Last spring, a local Armory Board was organized to wage a campaign to secure an armory site for the Troop. This board consists of George E. Shaw, president; W. T. Tredway, vice president; Dr. Edward M. Iland, secretary and treasurer; F. H. Stark, H. W. Wickenheiser, Stewart Johnson, John R. McCune, Charles C. McGovern, and William A. Sergeant. The board, in addition to waging the campaign for permanent quarters, has charge of the financial affairs of the Troop and likewise acts as an advisory body.

Through the efforts of the Armory Board a splendid site for the permanent home of the Troop was secured. It is now planned to raise approximately $75,000 to give the Troop an armory worthy of its prestige and to do full justice to the opportunities provided by the excellent dimensions of the lot secured. The proposed new building for the Troop will be 180 by 250 feet in size and will be absolutely fireproof. The structure will contain rooms for the various officers, lockers, bathrooms, vaults for the keeping of records, a spacious club room, a large drill floor which will be available for social and public events of the borough and a gallery overlooking this drill floor to seat one thousand persons, a rifle range, bowling alley, artificers' room, farriers' room, storage quarters, heating plant, and in fact every convenience that should be included in the equipment of a modern armory for a Troop of Cavalry.

Space in the Journal forbids a long and exhaustive recital of the achievements of Coraopolis to which a history of the Commonwealth would entitle the community, but its splendid record cannot be dismissed in a few words. Coraopolis was for a century or more but a straggling village, but its men made history. They were early settlers, sturdy men who helped in the development of Western Pennsylvania, and their descendants were the fighters who carried the flag across the Potomac and kept the South in the Union. For years the community was known as Vancefort and was but a thrifty farming settlement. The village gradually grew, however, and in 1880 changed its name to Middletown. Six years later the village had grown to such an extent that it was incorporated as a borough and known therafter as Coraopolis. Progress has been the motto of Coraopolis since its birth, and its citizens are unquestionably energetic, enterprising, wideawake men. Through their efforts a large number of great industrial establishments have located in the borough, and it is but a short time before Coraopolis will be a full-sized city with a population of 25,000 men, women and children.

Coraopolis is in several respects a modern Utopia, compared with some other towns and cities of this, and, for that matter, other States. The borough owns its own electric light and water plants and is operating them both at a profit. In addition, Coraopolis has the proud distinction of having more and better paved streets and cement sidewalks than any other town of its size in Western Pennsylvania. Its splendid civic spirit cannot but make a pleasing and everlasting impression upon a visitor.

Lieutenant A. D. Guy is the present Burgess of Coraopolis and he and the Councilmen and other borough officers work in the greatest harmony for the betterment of the community. The other borough officers are D. K. Clever, President of Council; W. H. Adkins, Treasurer; Ernest Harper, Borough Clerk; James L. Adams, Solicitor, and J. T. O'Reilly, M. L. Murphy, Dr. E. M. Iland, R. P. Moore, Thomas Brand and Thomas Pugh, Councilmen.

To the efforts largely of Captain McGovern, the organization of the Troop was made possible. On November 22, 1910, he appeared before the Borough Councils of Coraopolis and cited to these solons that if they would put themselves in the position of giving an appropriate site to the State that he would lend his time and efforts to procure the Troop for Coraopolis. A committee of Council was appointed to confer with the Chamber of Commerce, and at this meeting, after satisfying them as to the authority of Council under the Act of 1909, he induced the committee to recommend to the Chamber of Commerce to call a mass meeting of citizens, which was done. The result was a howling success. Captain McGovern procured as speakers for this meeting Colonel Frank I. Rutledge, Major Edward L. Kearns· Major Robert M. Ewing, and Captain A. V. Crookston as well as some prominent citizens from Pittsburgh to talk in a strain suitable to the occasion. Plenty of additional work was done by him, but after the mass meeting the matter was on in full force. Committees were appointed under his direction. Seven hundred dollars was immediately donated for horse hire and incidental expenses and by June of 1911 the Troop was in good shape to go to the annual encampment, but on account of lack of equipment the Adjutant General advised that the muster of the Troop be postponed and was not ordered until October 25, 1911. The actual muster took place November 2, 1911, under the auspices of Colonel A. L. Logan and Captain C. B. Mehard, sixty-five officers and men being mustered.

Captain Charles C. McGovern is one of the ablest officers in the National Guard. For many years he commanded Company E, of the Fourteenth Infantry, and prior to that was Battalion Adjutant and upon several occasions has been called upon to discharge departmental duties. He is a strict disciplinarian, but a manly officer who holds the affections of his men. Captain McGovern is a horseman of great ability and an expert rifleman. He is a thorough student of human nature, and he is a valuable asset to the National Guard. He served with the Fourteenth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry during the Spanish-American War.

First Lieutenant James J. Firestone is an officer of experience and fitted both by temperament and knowledge for the position. He is a prominent druggist and business man of Coraopolis and is regarded as one of its most enterprising citizens. Lieutenant Firestone is also an expert horseman and is a valuable officer of the Cavalry arm.

Second Lieutenant W. Heber Dithrich comes of a pioneer family of the Ohio Valley. He is a prominent lawyer, associated with Senator Adams and Mr. Tredway, both members of the local Armory Board, and has a promising future. His literary attainments are well recognized throughout Western Pennsylvania, and he is a prime factor in all public affairs in Coraoplis. Lieutenant Dithrich has well demonstrated his value to the service during the career of the Troop.

Captain E. M. Iland, of the Medical Department of the Eighteenth Infantry, is included among the good friends of the young Troop. Captain Iland is one of the best known residents of Coraopolis and is highly esteemed. He is a Past Exalted Ruler of the Coraopolis Lodge of Elks, which fraternity is unusually potent in the community, and is active in many spheres to promote the welfare of the community.

W. E. Laughner has been pronounced in his friendship for the Coraopolis Troop. Mr. Laughner is a member of the Borough Council and his efforts in that body were to a great measure responsible for the giving of the armory site to the Troop. Mr. Laughner is one of the most prominent citizens of Coraopolis and one of its most successful. He resides at 806 Sixth avenue, in one of the most handsome homes in Western Pennsylvania.

W. T. Tredway, Vice President of the Coraopolis Armory Board, has been one of the leaders at the Allegheny county bar for a score of years. He graduated from Washington and Jefferson College and was associated in law practice with former Governor William A. Stone and Supreme Court Justice W. P. Potter for years. Mr. Tredway is regarded as a great authority upon corporation law. He organized the Pittsburgh, Neville Island and Coraopolis Railroad and represented it until it was merged into the West End Railway Company. He also organized and now represents the Coraopolis National Bank, Ohio Valley Trust Company, and the Valley Trust

FIRST LIEUTENANT JAMES J. FIRESTONE, TROOP H.

Company, of the East End, Pittsburgh, now the East End Savings and Trust Company. Mr. Tredway has long been potent in Republican politics and has been a delegate to numerous State conventions. He was chairman of the County Committee in 1907 and was the Borough Solicitor of Coraopolis for a number of years.

Mr. Tredway is a charter member and was first secretary of the Pittsburgh Circle, No. 48, of the Protected Home Circle, and is a member of the Odd Fellows, the Knights of the Maccabees, the Royal Arcanum, Woodmen of the World and the Americus Republican Club and the Young Men's Republican Tariff Club of Pittsburgh He is Exalted Ruler of Coraopolis Lodge No. 1090 G. P. O. Elks, and is a member of the Blue Lodge, Royal Arch and Chapter Masons, Syria Temple, the American Institute of Civics, and a trustee of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

J. E. Brentzel, president of the National Mercantile Agency, negotiated the realty proceedings which secured the armory site for the Troop. Mr. Brentzel is at the head of an unusually enterprising and hustling real estate and insurance firm, which though but little more than a year old is already well in the lead in its lines of activity. The company conducts a real estate, insurance, loan and collection business, and by the sale of its stock to a large number of the business men and property holders of Coraopolis has secured the cooperation and good will of the community. The company is the Coraopolis agency of many of the leading insurance companies of the world, and has already well established itself as a great commercial success. F. E. McBride is the secretary and treasurer of the company and W. S. White is the solicitor.

First Lieutenant and Battalion Adjutant Alexander D. Guy, of the Fourteenth Infantry, is the Burgess of Coraopolis and one of the best equipped executives in Pennsylvania. Lieutenant Guy was most energetic in his efforts in behalf of the Coraopolis Troop. Lieutenant Guy has himself achieved rare distinction in the service and displayed splendid familiarity with departmental work at the recent encampment of the Second Brigade at Indiana, when he served as Acting Quartermaster. He is a son of the late William H. Guy, who served eight terms as a poor director of Allegheny county, and was one of the best known residents in Western Pennsylvania. Lieutenant Guy was born in Moon township and has resided in Coraopolis for twenty-four years. He is engaged in the real estate and insurance business and is interested in a number of Coraopolis enterprises.

Senator James L. Adams is the borough solicitor of Coraopolis and was one of the leaders in the efforts to secure the armory site. He is one of the best known residents of the community and is a prominent member of the Allegheny county bar. Senator Adams was born in 1873, and after spending his early boyhood on his father's farm in Moon township, graduated from the Slippery Rock Normal School and the Law School of the Western University of Pennsylvania. He was admitted to practice in 1906, and during the same year was elected to the Pennsylvania House of Representatives. He was re-elected in 1908, and was chosen two years later as State Senator to fill an unexpired term. He has been much interested in the development of Coraopolis and has been a prime factor in all movements for this purpose.

H. W. Wickenhiser, member of the Armory Board, has the leading hardware store in Coraopolis. He is one of the most progressive merchants in the Ohio valley. He succeeded the firm of Wickenhiser and Harman and became sole proprietor five years ago. Everything in an up-to-date general hardware store can be purchased at his establishment. Before coming to Coraopolis Mr. Wickenhiser received his early training with the McIntosh-Huntingdon Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, and for a number of years represented that firm in Western Pennsylvania. He served as Burgess of Coraopolis for one term and is a prominent member of the Chamber of Commerce.

J. H. Stark, active member of the Armory Board, has been a genuine hustler for the Coraopolis Troop. Mr. Stark is one of the leaders in Coraopolis. He is wideawake and progressive and one of the most popular men in the community. He represents the Pittsburgh Coal Company, at Coraopolis, and is in charge of their railroads and shops. He is a busy man, and in addition to his own business and his efforts for the Troop is an active member of the Chamber of Commerce and is a director of the Young Men's Christian Association. Many handsome new residential sections of Coraopolis have been developed through his enterprise and foresight.

Harry C. Graham, president of the Coraopolis Chamber of Commerce, is one of the very best friends of the Troop. He is vice president of the Graham Nut Co., director in the Coraopolis Savings and Trust Company, director in the Coraopolis Young Men's Christian Association, and holds other responsible positions in the community. He was chosen president of the Coraopolis Chamber of Commerce in 1908 and has been re-elected every year since then.

A few years ago when the movement for a Young Men's Christian Association was started, Mr. Graham was made chairman of the Citizens' Committee and successfully conducted a whirlwind campaign for the building fund. He has been appointed chairman of the General Committee on Arrangements for the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the borough and the opening of the new bridge.

Mr. Graham possesses rare executive abilities, combining genial manners and fidelity to trust with a splendid energy.

William A. Sargeant, a member of the Armory Board, has been indefatigable in his efforts to aid the Coraopolis Troop. Mr. Sargeant is one of the leading citizens of the borough.

SECOND LIEUTENANT WILLIAM H. DITHRICH, TROOP H.

SERGEANT W. E. ANDERSON.

He was born in 1868 on Roberts street, Pittsburgh, and went to work in a glass factory when he was twelve years of age. He has continued to follow the glass business, working in various departments, until the present time.

Mr. Sargeant came to Coraopolis as foreman of the decorating department when the Consolidated Lamp and Glass Company moved its factory to the town in 1896.

He has remained with the company ever since and has been advanced from time to time until he is now general manager.

Mr. Sargeant was elected to Council in 1904 and served in that body for three years. For one term he was the president of Council. His record in office was excellent and has been constantly much lauded.

Stewart Johnson, member of the Armory Board, has been a liberal contributor to the financial assistance of the Troop, and has been generally interested in its welfare. Mr. Johnson is one of the leading citizens of Allegheny county and is highly esteemed throughout Western Pennsylvania.

Charles H. Stevenson, one of the good friends of the Troop, is a director of the Coraopolis Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Stevenson has been a leader in the various public movements for the advancement of Coraopolis and his services for the Troop have been a factor in its success.

MILITIA NOTES BULLETIN.

Much interesting information is gleaned from the latest bulletin of militia notes issued by the War Department. Some of these notes follow:

The State of Massachusetts published the following regulations in a recent General Order:

1. Every enlisted man of the militia below the rank of marksman must qualify with the gallery practice rifle, calibre .22, before being allowed to practice with the service rifle, calibre .30.

2. The indoor qualification requirements are as follows:

(a) Two scores of 38 or better in 10 successive shots each off hand, and two scores of 40 or better in 10 successive shots each prone.

(b) Distance 25 yards. (A gallery practice competition has also been arranged for).

In connection with rifle practice, it is considered indispensable for range work that the soldier has had some form of indoor instruction, either aiming and practice drill, or gallery practice. Indoor shooting not only materially assists in the instruction of the soldier, but is of positive benefit in stimulating interest.

A careful perusal of the reports from the summer camp of 1911, showed that in many cases an undue amount of time and attention was devoted to Guard Duty, and thereby needed instruction in drills and tactical exercises was curtailed. Excessive guard duty brought about a material percentage of absentees from other outdoor work. A solution of this problem consists in a medium course being followed. It is believed that, rather than have a large, indifferently instructed guard, it would be preferable to reduce it and improve the instruction. If the regular service is taken as a guide, note is made of the fact that in the San Antonio camps, no guard was on duty in some instances during the day, and only a squad by night, and yet no property was lost or stolen. Guard duty in camps is primarily for the safety of property. An attempt should be made to have every officer and man present at drill, and other forms of instruction.

The State of Michigan has adopted the following system: All boxes and lockers of Infantry, Cavalry, and Artillery regiments, whenever painted, in the future will be painted as follows:

GUIDON SERGEANT GEORGE W. EVANS.

(a) The entire box or locker will be painted an olive-drab color.

(b) A stripe four inches wide running lengthwise around the middle of the box (not over the top and under the bottom) will be painted: Red for the first, white for the second, and blue for the third battalion or squadron of each regiment.

(c) A stencil in black as is used for stenciling the haversack, showing company, regiment, and arm will then be put on two sides or ends of the box over the stripe.

The State of New Hampshire is providing in every armory a cleaning stand in which are kept cleaning materials, cloth, oil, etc This stand is placed in the immediate vicinity of the arm racks, and is large enough so that four or five men can clean their rifles at the same time.

The following practical methods of instruction are carried on in California:

Shelter-tent pitching: 2 x 4's, with holes bored at proper intervals to receive the shelter tent pins, are attached by bolts to the floor which has been carefully measured and chalked off so that the tents can be readily pitched.

CORPORAL LE MAIR ROSS.

CORPORAL EDW. MURPHY.

CORPORAL AUGUSTUS KUHLMAN.

CORPORAL WM. R. HAGUE.

Map reading with 12 inch scale and sand table: Simple problems are worked out on the map such as "How long will it take a company of infantry, marching 2 3-4 miles an hour, to march from A to B?" The sand table is used in connection with the blackboard by first contouring on the board a regular formed piece of ground and then constructing same on the table, and vice versa, etc.

Signalling: Two squads operate from different parts of the armory. The method for beginners is not to have them study the code separately from the practical work, but to constantly use the book as a reference in the sending and receiving of messages.

In connection with the qualification in target practice of Sergeant Instructors, the following decision of the War Department is given:

It is desired that, whenever practicable, non-commissioned officers of the Regular Army on duty with the National Guard be permitted to fire for classification in marksmanship in accordance with the provisions of the Provisional Small-Arms Firing Manual, 1909. To this end, Sergeant ———— is authorized to fire for classification under the personal supervision of the inspector-instructor on duty with the ———— National Guard, at such time as will least interfere with the performance of his duties or the duties of the inspector-instructor. The reports required by the Small-Arms Firing Manual will be submitted by the inspector-instructor directly to the division commander.

A misunderstanding has arisen in some States as to the field artillery officers' camps this year, and it has been assumed that the Fort Riley camp is substituted for the Fort Sill exercises. This is a mistake. Both the School of Fire at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, from May 15 to June 15, and the Fort Riley camp of instruction, from July 6 to 20, will be held. It is not, however, expected that any individual officer will attend both camps. The Fort Riley camp is intended for general field artillery instruction, and incidentally is a preparatory course of instruction for subsequent attendance at the Fort Sill School of Fire.

It is not the intention of the War Department to authorize joint Army and Militia Coast Defense Exercises this year of so extensive a character as to require the presence of infantry supports. The exercises this year will be limited to joint encampments of the Coast Artillery Reserves of the Organized Militia primarily for the purpose of holding their target practice, and such exercises of a joint character as may be authorized will be only such as can be carried out with the troops of the Regular Coast Artillery in garrison at the Coast Artillery posts.

The Journal announces with great regret the retirement of Colonel Asher Miner, from the command of the Ninth Infantry. Pressure of business is responsible for the withdarwal from the National Guard of one of its ablest commanders. Colonel Miner has been in poor health for some time, owing to the strain upon his nervous system due to his efforts for the regiment combined with his business requirements. He is, at this time, constructing the largest flour mill in the world, and this enterprise necessitates his constant attention. The retirement of Colonel Miner is a decided blow to the National Guard, and particularly so to the Ninth Infantry. Under his administration the regiment made a remarkable advance, and to-day holds the distinction of the highest rating of efficiency in the State.

At a recent dinner given by Colonel Miner to the officers and Veteran Corps of the regiment, he was petitioned by a signed testimonial to continue in the command. Every officer in the regiment signed the testimonial, which was drafted in anticipation of this step of Colonel Miner. He promised at the time to give the matter due consideration, but much to the regret of the regiment, and of the Guard, found it impossible to continue. Had Colonel Miner remained in the service, it is generally believed that Governor Tener would have appointed him as the successor of Brigadier General J. Lewis Good, who will retire in July next.

The improvements in the First Regiment Armory will be upon a much more pretentious scale than at first announced. Colonel Eidell is determined to give his men up-to-date facilities, similar to those afforded to the men of the Eighteenth Infantry, at Pittsburgh, which now possesses what is in many respects a model armory. A supplementary drill floor, eight feet below the present surface, is the first improvement planned by Colonel Eidell. This drill floor will be so constructed that when the present hall is engaged the military training will not be interrupted. Last year the work of the regiment was handicapped by the constant occupation of the drill floor with exhibitions and the like. The regiment was only able to use the floor for its own work on eleven nights during the drill season. The other improvements contemplated will include a large swimming pool, bowling alley, racquet court, billiard room, and in fact all conveniences that make up a gentleman's club.

With eight troops of cavalry and four troops of police, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has the equivalent of a full regiment of cavalry. These troops are geographically distributed and every section of the State is assured of protection. Should the State police force be confronted with a problem too serious for its handling, naturally the military arm of the Commonwealth would support it. It is generally believed that the cavalry arm of the Guard would, under these conditions, be the first to reinforce the constabulary.

The inspections by the United States Army officers indicate a decided loss in the attendance. In the First Brigade, in particular, Captain Partello has commented upon the poor numerical showings made by the companies. These conditions, which evidently hold true in large measure throughout the Guard, only emphasize the great need of the pay bill, which is now before Congress. Time and again the demand for the passage of this measure has been called to the attention of our national legislators. It is to be hoped that the present Congress will accomplish something at least in this direction.

Reports are in circulation that Major Charles C. Norris, Jr., present Assistant Adjustant General, First Brigade, will shortly be appointed Judge Advocate General, to succeed Major Howard A. Davis, whose prospective retirement has been announced. Major Norris is splendidly equipped for this office. He is an attorney of ability and is devoted in his loyalty to the Guard. Major Robert M. Brookfield, of the Inspector General's Department, and assigned to the staff of Brigadier General William G. Price, is prominently mentioned as the probable successor of Major Norris as Assistant Adjutant General. Major Davis has made an excellent Judge Advocate General and has been untiring in his zeal for the service.

NOTES

Plans long discussed are now well under way for the early organization of a battery of field artillery in Philadelphia. Indications point to these plans and are meeting with success. More than a hundred names, chiefly obtained from the Cooper Battalion, have been enrolled, according to report, and it is expected that the formal muster of the battery into the National Guard will be but a matter of a short time. It is to be remembered that Philadelphia until a few years ago had a battery stationed here, but this was later merged into Troop A. The plan for the organization of the new battery deserve encouragement. The Cooper Battalion is a well-drilled practical body of young men and its members should serve as a splendid nucleus for the new battery.

Captain James F. Cooper, Company L, Thirteenth Infantry, was most successful recently as sponsor for a benefit which he organized on behalf of the family of the late Sergeant William F. Fitzgerald. Sergeant Fitzgerald was killed while performing a diving feat in one of the vaudeville theatres at Scranton. The benefit was given at the Thirteenth Regiment Armory and netted a tidy sum for the survivors.

Captain Samuel B. Edwards, of Company H, of the Eighth Infantry, has been successful in raising nearly $10,000 in subscriptions for an armory site which has been tendered to the State. Captain Edwards, while a comparatively new officer in the State service, has undoubtedly demonstrated his value to the Guard, as the contributions in such large amounts were due almost entirely to his personal solicitations. Captain Edwards is one of the most prominent attorneys in Schuykill county and Colonel Hutchison is to be congratulated upon his acquisition.

It is generally believed that it is but a matter of comparatively short time before there will be a new State Armory at York, for Companies A and K, of the Eighth Infantry. Captains Baublitz and Van Baman have worked assiduously to secure better quarters for their men and it now appears as though their efforts would be crowned with success.

Colonel C. K. Biddle has stirred up an activity in the Third Infantry that promises much for the standing of this time-honored command in the future. Vacancies in the companies are being filled by young blood of intelligence, and it is expected that Colonel Biddle's plans for the improvement of the regiment will meet with hearty co-operation. Lieutenant Colonel Charles T. Cresswell, who has been abroad upon a leave of absence, will shortly return and renew his activities in the command.

Plans for the improvement of the Second Infantry Armory are well under way and it is expected that the work of construction will soon begin. As now planned the drill floor will not be extended over the vacant lot adjoining the south side of the armory building, but the present one-story structure will be increased to three stories in height and in all probability will extend the full length of the available ground. This project is far more pretentious than originally contemplated and if carried to conclusion will provide unusually spacious quarters for the men of Colonel Turner's command. Interior comforts and club facilities will also be considered in the plans for improving the armory, and it is practically assured that when the work upon the building is completed that the Second Infantry will have a structure of which it may well be proud.

Colonel William S. McKee, the new commander of the Fourteenth Infantry, is untiring in his efforts to keep this splendid regiment up to its well-known standard of efficiency. Colonel McKee is expected to muster another new company at McKeesport in a short time and this additional unit will give his command ten companies. It is confidently expected that two other companies will soon be added to the roster of the Fourteenth, thus giving the regiment its full quota.

Great preparations are already being made for the twelfth annual convention of the American Veterans of Foreign Service to be held at Philadelphia, next August, and there is every expectation that the meeting will be one of the most successful ever undertaken by the celebrated organization. Through the courtesy of Lieutenant Louis H. Schmidt, of the Third Infantry, temporary headquarters will be located at Rooms 1113 and 1114 Betz Building. The officers of the committee in charge of the arrangements are Fred. Morrison, chairman, 8054 Walker street, Holmesburg; James F. Tatlow, secretary, 6418 North Twenty-first street, and Jacob Lang, secretary, 2014 North Howard street.

Through the patriotic spirit of E. M. Young, one of Allentown's best known citizens, Colonel O'Neill's Fourth Infantry has probably the finest regimental headquarters in the State. Mr. Young recently built for himself a magnificent home and concluded to permit the old homestead of his family, located on Centre Square, to be used jointly by the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic and by the Fourth Infantry as its headquarters. The building is a specious old mansion with all modern conveniences and the carpets and decorations throughout the building are superb. Mr. Young is the son of the late Colonel E. B. Young, in whose honor is named Post No. 87, Department of Pennsylvania, G. A. R. Mr. Young is a real and true friend of the veterans of the sixties and the present day citizen soldiers and his example might well be emulated by other captains of industry.

Washing Clothes in Cold Weather

Is nothing short of torture, if done in the old-fashioned way. It is made a very simple, easy, economical task with an ELECTRIC WASHING MACHINE. You simply put the soiled clothes in, turn a switch and all of the work is done by electric power at a cost of not more than 2 cents an hour. The finest fabrics are not damaged a particle, but you will find that your clothes are cleaned better than by the obsolete wash-board method, and in one-half the time.

Call Contract Department, 3200 Grant or 761 Hiland, or visit Display Rooms, Highland Building, East Liberty, and ask for free demonstration.
